

A Wrinkle in Time

Music: Herin, Truax / Lyrics: Herin

Drums: Adam Gust

Bass: Kevin Chown

Electric & acoustic guitars: Chris Herin

Lead & backing vocals: Randy McStine

Keyboards: Hugh Syme & Chris Herin

The Story

McStine's third lead vocal is on a song that had been previously relegated to the scrap heap, but upon further review was able to be miraculously reconstituted by Brown's editing expertise. "A Wrinkle in Time" suffered from a bit of structural "bloat" and had a few technical issues with Adam Gust's otherwise fine drum performance. It was the last song to be completed for Hiding in Plain Sight and Herin ended up being the holdout. As Laser's Edge label president Ken Golden listened to the works in progress, he noted Herin's absence on lead guitar.

(Herin): "I didn't really think about the fact I wasn't doing any solos, but I can see how that would appear a little odd for a guitarist's solo album. But after all, I wrote and co-wrote the songs and played lots of instruments so having the opportunity to tap the likes of Frampton, Barre, Kollman, etc. didn't seem like I was shortchanging myself (or the listeners). Anyway..., Ken made a valid point, so I played the "A Wrinkle in Time" solo myself. And since this was the last opportunity to contribute in this capacity, I'm glad Ken woke me up before it was too late!"

A Wrinkle in Time

The weight of time
Presses down on me
I don't know how to meet reality
Scenery blurring, I retreat

These wheels no longer turn
All of a sudden then is now – how?
Chasing a place to hide
Grace, we yearn

*We walk side by side in a silent way
Louder than any words
Unspoken truth
A wrinkle in time
Not by design*

Time ticks away
From another day
I can't embrace
This unwanted change
Comfortable in ignorance I repent

*We walk side by side in a silent way
Louder than any words
Unspoken truth
A wrinkle in time
Not by design
Green eyes blink as the full moon shines*

Night light shadows dance
When lamp lights go out
Soothes a well-worn soul
Body and mind disconnect
Rope untied - free to fly

*We walk side by side in a silent way
Louder than any words
Unspoken truth
A wrinkle in time
Not by design
Too late the cavalry*

Wide-eyed in surprise
A wrinkle in time
With time undefined
Moments divide
A wrinkle in time
A face in disguise
Nowhere to hide
A wrinkle in time